New World Research says:

Local archaeology site not significant

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
"No cultural resources of significance" are located within a 25-acre tract near the proposed Borg-Warner site at Port Bienville Industrial Park in Hancock County, New World Research states.

Discovery of cultural resources of significance at the site could have delayed proposed construction of a $50 million Borg-Warner plastics plant at the park.

A discovery also could have made those cultural resources eligible for the National Register of Historic Places.

New World Research was hired by the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission to conduct the "testing phase" to further investigate the results of a "survey phase" completed at the industrial park in March by Biloxi Archaeologist Dale Greenwell.

Greenwell is also an instructor at the University of Southern Mississippi Gulf Park branch in Long Beach.

"I am very surprised at the negative results of New World Research," Greenwell stated Friday after reading a preliminary report released by New World Research to Port and Harbor Commission Director Wilson Webb.

Greenwell added, "I guess we found all the archaeological evidence there was."

After conducting the first phase or survey of the 25-acre site at Port Bienville in March, Greenwell said, "Enough evidence has been found to support the presence of a Poverty Point culture's village here."

The Poverty Point culture existed in 1,500 B.C. Poverty Point people lived over a wide area of the Mississippi Valley.

The largest center of their culture was in Eppe, La. which is the Poverty Point site. They had a large population and large settlements, having smaller satellite settlements extending hundreds of miles in all directions.

Greenwell also believed two Marks-ville Sites were present at Port Bienville within the 25-acre tract.

The Marks-ville, who were a horticultural people living in farmlets and belonged to the burial mound period, lived at the Port Bienville site during the 16th century, according to Greenwell.

New World Research performed the three-day testing phase study from Sept. 4 to Sept. 7 for $2,092.

Greenwell offered to perform the same service for $1,200 but Commission Director Wilson Webb recommended Greenwell not be hired, saying, "his survey report was 'confusing.'"

The Mississippi Department of Archives and History recommended the Port and Harbor Commission have the archaeological testing phase performed.

DAMAGE REPORTS

The Hancock County Civil Defense Office is requesting county residents to report any storm-related damages, regardless of extent, sustained from Hurricane Frederic. The county is included among those declared disaster areas due to the storm by President Jimmy Carter and Gov. Cliff Finch, and the damage reports are necessary to secure federal assistance, according to Ms. Dorothy Bielstein, Civil Defense secretary. The CD office in Valeria C. Jones Complex, Bay St. Louis will be open Sunday afternoon to receive damage reports. For information, call 467-9224.

TRASH PICKUP

Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett and Waveland City Clerk Barbara Rappold reported Saturday ordinances in those cities requiring the bundling of trash are suspended during cleanup operations following Hurricane Frederic. Waveland crews are working through this weekend, Rappold said. She urges residents, however, to make neat stacks which can be easily handled by workers. Bennett said, "We began our pickups Friday, and will start again at 7 a.m. Monday until we have covered every street and every house in the city." "When that full-scale pickup is completed, we will report back to the ordinance," Bennett added. Residents of Hancock County outside city limits should contact private disposal contractors who service those areas.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Jack D. Robinson, president of Alcan Cable, division of Alcan Aluminum Corp., will be the guest speaker Thursday at the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Morning Edition. He will speak of current activities and future goals of Alcan Cable. The meeting will be at 8 a.m. at the Chamber, 100 N. Main. Chamber members and non-members are invited to attend.

Minimal damage

Frederic brushes Hancock County

By RICH ADAMS

Hancock County escaped relatively unscathed with minor window breakage and felled trees Wednesday night and Thursday morning as Hurricane Frederic pounded the southwest tip of Alabama and sections of Mississippi with sustained winds of 130 miles per hour.

More than 884 Hancock County residents, the destruction of Hurricane Camille 10 years ago fresh in their minds, sought refuge at the four Civil Defense shelters established in the county, Civil Defense Director Robert Boudin reported.

"The operation went real smooth," Boudin said Thursday.

"We recorded 884 people in the four shelters. Not too much damage was incurred the county, just trees and antenae felled by the winds," he added.

Boudin said some 25 volunteer workers manned the Civil Defense Emergency Operation Center on a 24-hour basis, awaiting any rescues if necessary.

Law enforcement officials in the county reported minor damages as a result of the 75 mile per hour wind gusts reported here, but added the area escaped major damage as the storm made a sudden turn northward Wednesday evening.

"Mobile, Alabama got the brunt of the storm," said Hancock County Sheriff Sylvan J. Ladner Thursday.

"We were really lucky." The sheriff said he received reports of windows being blown out, parts of roofs being removed by the winds, and trees crashing to the ground.

Luckily there were no personal injuries. I had eight men out on patrol all night long to assist people and prevent looting," Ladner said.

The sheriff reported power went out at the sheriff's department, as it did in most of the county, at approximately 11:35 p.m. Wednesday.

"Civil Defense had given us an emergency generator that day, but it did not work Wednesday night," Ladner reported.

"We were without power all night, until 6 a.m. the following morning, and had to relay all of our calls through the Bay St. Louis Police Department," he continued.

"I have been asking the Hancock County Board of Supervisors for a generator for the past four or five years. It always gives generators to the Civil Defense," the sheriff complained.

Ladner said when the power failed, his gasoline pumps were useless and he had to ask Target Oil on US-90 to open and give his cars gasoline.

He conceded, however, that the wind and rain did little major damage to the county. "There was no major damage, and very little water damage. It hit at low tide, and Mobile got the brunt of the storm," he emphasized.

"We were lucky," the sheriff added. Waveland Police Investigator Robert (Poochie) Tartavouille reported minor damages in that city as well.

"Some trees blew over and a window at Target Oil blew out," he said Thursday.

"Power was knocked out, but all the power in City Hall and the police station has been restored. Station No. Two and the sewerage plant are still without power," he said Thursday morning.

Bay St. Louis Police Chief Douglas Williams said he had the city "sewed up" during the height of the storm, and also reported minor damages.

"We survived well compared to other places along the Coast," the chief reported.

"We had the beach and city sewed up as far as looting and all was concerned. I have to brag on that," the lawman said.

"We were stopping every car whether they belonged here or not. We had auxiliary policemen and extra cars out on patrol," he continued.

"A few places reported damage, like shattered glass and a section of wall at

County board ok's south end school

By RICH ADAMS
The Hancock County School Board Thursday night approved a long-range building plan which includes construction of a classroom high school south of Bay St. Louis at an estimated cost of slightly more than $1 million.

Hancock County Superintendent of Schools John Ladner of the Department of Education and a member of the school's Joint Citizens Advisory Committee, introduced the plan to the board. The plan calls for a 120,000 sq. ft. building with 12 classrooms, a cafeteria, a gymnasium, a library, a music room, a science room, a computer room, a vocational room, a health room, a counseling room, a principal's office, a superintendent's office, a board room, a secretary's office, a janitor's office, a maintenance shop, a storage room, a parking lot, and a playground.

Randolph said the board is currently in the process of securing the land for the school. The land is located on the south end of the county, near the intersection of Highway 90 and Highway 1.

West Brothers Building Materials blew away," he added.

"As a whole, we fared fairly well," Williams said.

"I have to praise the fire department and Civil Defense for the job they did," he added.

The Bay St. Louis Street, Utility, and Public Ground Departments also worked throughout the evening of the hurricane, clearing trees and debris from the roads.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett and some of the city councilmen were out often during the storm checking damages in the city.

Street Department Superintendent Charlie Black and workers Price Hughes, Charles Gullin, Roland Acker, and Walter Benoit worked from 8 a.m. Wednesday until the early morning hours Thursday clearing streets to keep them open to emergency traffic and evacuations.

Utilitymen Charles Lanoux, Jordan Bush, and Curtis Bell coordinated efforts to restore power to the area with the power companies, and Public Ground Superintendent Bill Johnson and workers Charles Rayre and Byron Wright assisted in clearing the roadways of debris and dangerous live electrical wires.

Hancock General Hospital Administrator Harry Gilmore said operations there were "smooth and surprisingly quiet" during the storm.

"We treated one man who was hit by a snake, another who normally had problems breathing and could not hook up his machine because electricity was out, and another who smashed his hand moving a sailboat," Gilmore said.

"I can just thank God I can say we had these little details to worry about," he continued.

"And we had babies. The barometric pressure drops during a hurricane and induces labor. I believe we had five babies here, but we prepared in advance for that," he reported.

"I believe the county even set up a place for senior citizens, and that also helps us. Usually their children admit these senior citizens to the hospital so they won't have to stay home alone," the administrator said.

"With this shelter the senior citizens maintained a bit of their independence and had a place to go," he added.

Gilmore praised Civil Defense, and said a disaster drill last year assisted greatly in coping with an actual disaster.

"We had that drill last year, and I think that paid off," Gilmore said.

We remained in constant radio and telephone contact with Civil Defense headquarters, and that gave us a sense of security," he added.

"Things went remarkably well," he emphasized.

As Frederick approached the Gulf Coast Wednesday afternoon, most stores in the area closed, either because their supplies were nearly exhausted or because the stores were boarded and locked against the storm.

One of the few stores which remained open as the storm approached was Mauffray's Hardware Store on Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis, which sits just off the beach.

The store did a thriving business in sales of kerosene lamps and batteries for flashlights.

"When you tell people that you have batteries, they look at you like you have just given them a million dollars," said Flora Mauffray. One store which suffered damage in the storm was Walker's Department Store in the Bay St. Louis Mall (A&P), where two windows were shattered.

The manager, Dan Pardue, and a friend stayed in the shop throughout the hurricane to prevent looting or further damage.

Pardue said he had arrived at the store late at night as the awnings above the entrance were crawling to the ground, and witnessed a large window shattered by the wind.

Pardue said he and his assistant were replacing the window with a plywood slab when the wind changed direction and blew the next window out from inside the store.

"The pressure was incredible. My ears popped and the window exploded," Pardue said.

Pardue, a native of Montgomery, Alabama, said the experience with Frederick was his first run-in with a hurricane.

"But I am not going to run back to Alabama," he said, clearing up slabs of broken glass.

He praised the Bay St. Louis Police for their assistance Wednesday night.

"They were Johnny-on-the-spot," Pardue said.

"I would really like to thank Assistant Chief Frank Hess and Auxiliary Policeman Melvin Ulmer. They were really helpful," he added.

South Central Bell's Mississippi Vice President Frank Edmonds said by noon Thursday service had been interrupted to an estimated 33,000 telephones in the storm-affected areas.

High winds and heavy rains caused extensive damage to telephone company plant and outside facilities, Edmonds reported.

However, an estimate of damages is still unavailable, pending a report from a damage survey team he added.

The company's operations center in the most heavily damaged area, New Orleans, is reportedly operating on a limited basis.

Public utility officials in the area are working to restore service as quickly as possible.

At least one power line was downed in the area, and power was out for several hours in some areas.

Hancock Bank's Doris M sinks

The Hancock Bank's pleasure and fishing boat, the Doris M, took on water and sank at her moorings in Watts Bayou near Bay St. Louis during Hurricane Frederic last week.

George Schloegel, bank executive vice president, said the boat had been moved from the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club to safer harbor in the bayou Wednesday as the storm threatened.

The vessel was apparently moored over a submerged piling, however, and as tides went out following the storm, the hull was punctured by the obstruction, Schloegel said.

The boat took on some 3.5 to 4 feet of water to the deck level, the bank officer reported.

The bank normally maintains berthing for the boat at the Gulfport yacht harbor, but the Doris M had been operating for about a week out of the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club prior to Hurricane Frederic, he added.

ves," Haskins said.

The board voted in favor of sending a school maintenance employee to the course.

The board then voted to hire Pass Christian Architect John Mykolyk to prepare plans and specifications needed for the south end school.

Following the meeting, Woodrow Ladner said that the property on the south end will probably have a rezoning by the city's council.

Ladner said the new school will be a 100,000-sq.-ft. building, adding physical education and vocational training to the curriculum at the existing Hancock North Central.

"I think the new facility will raise the school's standing in the community and on the north end of the county," Ladner said.

Also at Thursday's meeting, the board approved a resolution to purchase a new school bus for the south end school.

"We also have $670,000 in surplus funds. It was said we only had $411,000, but over the year we have gained surplus money plus a surplus realized from the 1977-1978 budget," he continued.

"With the two mills we have asked the supervisors to grant for a handicapped center, that will give us $293,620. We would total $1,288,789," the superintendent explained.

"I am asking the board to approve the long-range plan and begin the plans and specifications for a new South Central High School and handicapped center," Randolph said.

On a motion by Oris Ladner, seconded by Banks, the two members unanimously approved the action.

Board Attorney Joseph G. Randolph said the Hancock County Board of Supervisors had approved the two mill increase asked for at a recent meeting.

Randolph said the increase is "a major step" and that the county will have a surplus in the next year.

He said the county budget is "already balanced and cannot be balanced by the county board."

tention the millage may be added on to the 1980-1981 fiscal year budget.

John Ladner asked the board where the surplus money had been when the school system was in danger of losing accreditation.

He then said a past outgoing school administration had conducted a "lame duck session" and spent more money than the school could afford.

Randolph was defeated in a bid for reelection to the superintendent post last month by Democratic nominee Billy Sills.

Sills faces Hancock North Central Principal Thad Haskins in the Nov. 7 General Election. Haskins filed as an independent candidate for that office.

However, no board members were contested in the current elections.

"Once again the people speak. This board has tried three times since 1974 to pass a bond issue, and the people have spoken," Ladner said.

"Now you ask the people again, without assessing any taxes at all. I don't think the matter should be what is in the best interest of the north, south, east or west of the county, but rather what is best for the children of Hancock County," he continued.

"The board can continue one thing as a case will be filed in court against this action," John Ladner said.

Citizen Advisory Committee Member Pat Patterson then gave his opinion on the proposed action.

"Does anyone have any authority to surround (the) school with a fence?" Patterson asked.

Woodrow Ladner said "No, and if that's the case, we have no authority to surround (the) school with a fence."

We were lucky!

Those of us who witnessed Hurricane Camille could talk of nothing else but how lucky we were with Frederick.

In those conversations, many stated how thankful they were that we didn't receive the brunt of the hurricane as we did in 1969.

We had damages, trees blown down, power shortages, windows broken, vehicles destroyed, and some roofs damaged, but most important, apparently no one was injured in our county.

Everyone has a feeling for the folks of Eastern Mississippi Gulf Coast, Alabama and Western Florida Coast which bore the wrath of Frederick like we did Camille ten years ago.

Many preparations were made, just in case the storm would have hit us directly, because we remembered Camille.

Our Civil Defense, American Red Cross, Hancock County Sheriff's force, Bay and Waveland Police Departments and Fire Departments all worked throughout night for our protection.

The many employees of our cities, and county and supervisors and mayors worked throughout the night to try and keep our roads open.

The Mississippi Power Company, Coast Electric Power Association and South Central Bell employees did a tremendous job in trying to keep our lights on and telephone lines open.

We realize some may have their electricity still out at the time of this being written, but we are told that before the weekend is over all power should be restored in Hancock County.

On Thursday, so many expressed how thankful they were in our area, we wonder how many will remember that today is the Lord's Day and will attend the Church of their choice.

To those of you who worked tirelessly throughout Hurricane Frederick, we thank you for a job well done.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions
About Advertising and Business Topics.

By S. GALE DENLEY

Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

Inflation is eating us all alive and you advocate more spending for advertising which I consider the main culprit in spiraling prices. Why don't you get your head straight? We Are Paying Too Much.

Dear WAFPM: I'm sorry about your plight, but as you well know, you have lots of company.

There are quite a few theories on the causes of inflation, and while yours might have limited merit under very special circumstances, it is simply, as a general rule, not true.

As a matter of fact, advertising, quite to the contrary, may be one of the few things you have in the struggle with inflation.

By carefully shopping the ads in your local newspaper you can find special sales and promotions featuring your needs, thus stretching your shrinking dollars.

Your short term benefit will be immediate savings, but by patronizing the shops that advertise you further aid them in their quest to sell at lowest prices.

They will be enabled to buy in volume and the savings thus generated in the future will be shared with you through lower prices.

Furthermore, the increased volume of sales will allow the managers to maintain a margin of profit with lower markups. This will also benefit you in lower prices in the future.

If you want to blame someone for inflation, you might select workers who demand more pay without a subsequent increase in productivity or performance. For this is a real cause of spiraling costs.

Some select the service industries, like advertising, as the villains because they produce no real goods.

But the test of this accusation must be if the services they provide aid the process of production—for example, health care that may increase workers' output and advertising that helps to move increased production.

Any wage or salary increase should be a recognition of an increased ability to perform in a certain job, be it teaching or making cars.

Time in grade, alone, is no reason for pay hikes—only productivity.

To be sure, there are quite a few non-economic reasons for increased production costs, but they should be recognized as such.

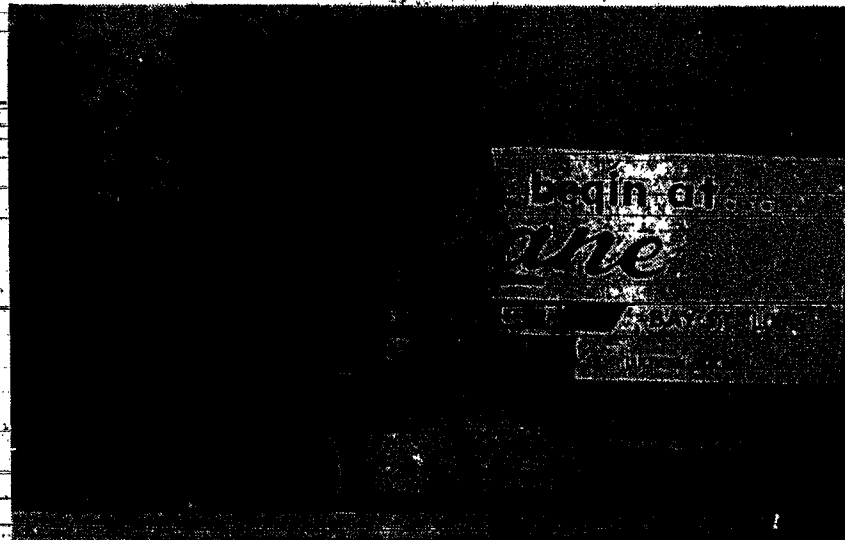

But back to your premise, I feel you have been grossly misled, and are thus attacking what could be one of your few friends.

I hope you will re-evaluate your position and in the future refuse to accept irrational conclusions. Read the ads and save your money.

ON TOP OF THE WORLD—A line repairman for Mississippi Power Company stands on top of high tension line crossbar on Necaise Avenue Thursday morning as his fellow worker watches from "Cherry Picker" below. Mississippi Power, Coast Electric and South Central Bell repairmen worked throughout the night of Hurricane Frederic trying to keep power and telephone lines open. Bay St. Louis city employees from all Departments also worked throughout the night keeping essential streets open for emergency vehicles. Both Bay St. Louis and Waveland Fire Departments answered calls throughout the night as transformers blew out and live wires came down. Hancock County Sheriff's Department and both Bay St. Louis and Waveland Police Departments had extra cars and men patrolling the streets as a protection against looting in areas where residents were forced to evacuate because of the threat of rising water. The members of those agencies and others deserve commendation for the services they rendered in the community, especially in times of emergencies.

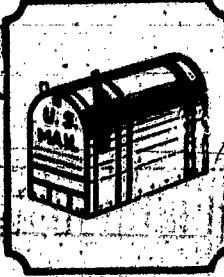

Billboards throughout county were damaged by high winds.

Outdoor TV antennae were among most frequent victims of Hurricane Frederic in Hancock County.

Recent ruling called

'homeowner's bonanza'

Editor
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir:

Homeowners and borrowers through banks and savings and loan institutions who have to pay insurance and taxes to be held in escrow by said mortgage groups now might be able to collect interest on said escrow account.

Federal Judge D. Dortch Warriner, Richmond, so rules Sept. 5, 1979, according to an AP story.

Each account has to be settled individually and a class action can not be brought, if no conspiracy of the savings and loan and banks exists.

If this escrow funds suit stands (and no doubt the thrift and banking groups will contest it through every appeal and legislative avenue available), the homeowner, borrower for a home or farm, might reap a small bonanza.

Cordially,

Washington report

By Trent Loft

VISITING WITH THE PEOPLE

PASCAGOULA, Miss. — Most elected officials realize that the only real way to find out what's on the people's minds is to talk to them directly.

That's what I've been doing while the U.S. House is in recess for its August district work period. Getting away from the hectic congressional activity in Washington to a more acceptable pace in South Mississippi is always enjoyable.

I've been on the road to towns and cities across the Fifth District, speaking to civic clubs in Hattiesburg and Piquette, the Petal Chamber of Commerce and groups holding conventions on the Coast. In addition, I have visited the Perry County Courthouse in New Augusta and the Jackson County Courthouse, listening to problems and comments.

I've also held office hours in my district offices in Gulfport and Hattiesburg, with a visit to my Laurel district office coming up this week.

Being back at home here in Pascagoula has given me the chance to put together a few notes on what the people have been telling me. As you might imagine, people have a number of concerns.

One of those, of course, is the energy situation. I am pleased to report that in a typically American style, people are coming up with suggestions for a variety of good ideas to help conserve our resources.

For example, I met with professors from the University of Southern Mississippi who are developing a method of compressing pinecones into a new energy source. The pinecones become a fire block about the size of two silver dollars, and can carry as much heat as No. 3 coal. The project is one of several being considered for funding by the Department of Energy.

Many people are still asking why the U.S. doesn't use its agricultural resources as a counterweight to the rising cost of oil. This "bushel-for-a-barrel" debate is an interesting one, especially when people consider it along with the foreign aid we send to OPEC. There is still a general disbelief that the U.S. sends about $1 billion a year to the 13 OPEC nations which control our oil supplies.

I've had many questions on gasoline as a substitute for gasoline and biomass, a process of making energy from garbage.

Another issue which has attracted attention is the situation with Vietnamese refugees, a subject of my column two weeks ago. This is not a remote issue in South Mississippi, because problems have arisen in the fishing industry.

People also have been talking about the departure of Andrew Young as U.N. ambassador, and wondering who will take his place. I think Young pretty much created the conditions which led to his resignation by holding an unauthorized meeting with the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), then giving a distorted version of it to his superiors at the State Department.

These are only some of the issues which are getting attention in the Fifth District, and I am grateful for the people who have shared comments and opinions with me.

MEC News

MISSISSIPPI ECONOMIC COUNCIL —
THE STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

RETHINK COUNTY GOVERNMENT
The basic structure of Mississippi's county government system predates the statutory provisions outlined in the 1890 Constitution.

In fact, Mississippi's county government system, along with the rest of the nation, can be traced to the Anglo-Saxon structure a thousand years ago.

It is no wonder that a close look at the system as it is operating reveals a need to provide more efficient operation and delivery of the services modern Mississippians need and deserve.

The Mississippi Economic Council's study, "County Government: Mississippi — A Model Plan for the Twenty-First Century," calls for restructuring the form of state government in order to make it more directly accountable to the voters.

Under the present system, county offices depend upon the Board of Supervisors for funding. But under the proposed plan, county offices would be directly accountable to the voters. The plan also calls for a new county government structure, one that would be more efficient and more accountable to the voters. The plan also calls for a new county government structure, one that would be more efficient and more accountable to the voters.

In the MEC model plan, three points are brought out:
— The county, reaffirmed as an arm of state government, must be given more flexibility if it is to meet the needs of the people whom it serves.

— The county's governing body, the board of supervisors, must be given more responsibility and more power.

— The county government must be more directly accountable to the voters.

Our freedom to buy what we choose, when we choose, where we choose, plus our freedom to buy and sell what we choose, and to challenge and improve for any business.

Hawks cripple Aggie aerial attack as Henry leads way to winner's circle

By RICH ADAMS
Sports Editor

Hancock North Central Halfback Lloyd Henry rushed for 473 yards Friday night against a Forrest County gridiron squad as the Hawks defeated the Aggies 15-6.

HNC Head Coach Irvin Favre credited the victory in part to a newly initiated "Pro four" defense which held the usually aerial-oriented Aggies to 88 yards.

The defense forced the Forrest County eleven to keep the ball on the ground, where they gained a mere 120 yards against an ever-toughening HNC defense.

"The whole team did a great job. The offense was very effective," Favre said following the game Friday.

"Our new pass defense worked just like we wanted it to, and we made (the Aggies) play the running game we wanted them to," he continued.

"It was a rough, physical game and some of our players were bruised up pretty good," the Hawk skipper added.

The Forrest County crew won the referee's toss and elected to receive.

The Aggies posed a threat on the first series of downs as Quarterback Billy Hopstein connected with Tony Stanley for a 27-yard gain, but the play was called back on a clipping infraction against Forrest County.

The setback failed to upset the Aggies as they continued to move downfield, eating up yardage to the HNC 6 yard line where Tony Romero successfully put a field goal through the uprights.

The Hawks took the kickoff on their 34 yard line and began moving towards paydirt, and on a fourth-and-four situation Quarterback Bobby Devaughn hit Henry with a flea-flicker for five yards to keep the Hawk drive alive.

The HNC crew lost the ball two plays later when a broken play produced a loose ball deep in Aggie territory which was pounced on by Forrest County's David Morrow.

Hopstein went to the air to Stanley again, this time for a 17 yard gain, but the Aggies were unable to move the ball and were forced to punt.

Hancock took the ball on their own 27 yard line, and on the first play from scrimmage the 150 pound Henry broke through the middle and ran 72 yards before being robbed of a touchdown when he was forced out of bounds on the one yard line.

Veteran Fullback Willy Santiago then went over the line to gain the needed yard and score.

Byron Ladner's conversion attempt was successful, and the Hawks led 7-3.

Forrest County started the next series of play from their 33 yard line and a toss from Hopstein intended for Stanley was picked off by Devaughn from a safety position.

The Hawks took possession of the ball on the 23 yard line after Devaughn raced for 22 yards with the intercepted pass.

On a fourth-and-12 situation from the 24 yard line Devaughn kept the ball and swept left to pick up 10 yards, but failed to gain enough to allow Hancock further possession of the ball.

Hopstein went to the air again, completing a screen pass to John Wardle for short yardage, but Tackle Nelson Crossdale picked off the next Aggie aerial and Hancock again held the ball deep in Forrest County turf.

Unable to move the ball, Byron Ladner attempted a 37 yard field goal, but the kick was short and the Aggies took possession.

On a series of play which combined aerials and a strong running attack, aided by a facemasking penalty against the Hawks, the Aggies moved within field goal range.

Romero was again called on to boot the ball, and again was successful as he kicked from 31 yards out.

The field goal was the final play of the half, and the Hawks went into the locker room with a slim 7-6 edge.

The HNC eleven did not waste any time after returning from the half-time break, taking the ball downfield in 13 plays to score again.

Henry, Santiago, and George Moore ate up the 72 yards during the series, and Moore scored on a one-yard plunge over the Aggie defensive line.

The Hawks pulled a razzle-dazzle play on the conversion attempt when ball holder Rene Baum jumped up and drilled the ball to Moore, who was all alone in the end zone for a two-point conversion.

Forrest County took the ensuing kickoff and moved the ball downfield until Ladner picked off an Aggie aerial.

The Hawks lost possession of the second quarter when Moore lost his grip on the pigskin and the Aggies recovered on the 30 yard line.

Hopstein tossed a 14 yard aerial to Wendall Long for a first down, but got sloppy and tossed another which was nabbed by Santiago.

The Hawks moved to the Aggie 17, but were plagued by losses and a penalty and were forced into another field goal position on a fourth-and-18 situation.

The kick from 37 yards out was short and the Aggies took possession of the ball.

The new Hawk defense forced numerous incomplete passes and a penalty, and the Aggies were forced to punt again.

The HNC eleven got the ball with 7:20 remaining in the final period and continued to move downfield, highlighted by a 22 yard romp by Henry.

The series took Hancock to the Aggie 10 yard line, but Devaughn and his running backs were unable to make the move to paydirt and lost the ball on downs.

The Aggies took the ball with 1:04 remaining on the clock, but time ran out for Forrest County and the Hawks had their second victory against one loss.

"These boys deserve all the credit in the world," Favre said.

"They have improved tremendously since their first game," he continued. "We did not have to punt one time, and that clearly shows we had good control of the ball," he added.

"Our main weakness is in depth-if we sustain a number of injuries, we will have to scrape the bottom of the barrel," the HNC skipper said.

The Hawks take on an improved Bay High eleven at Hawk Stadium next Friday night, and Favre is not taking James (Snuffy) Smith's Tigers lightly.

"Bay High is a good team. They have improved quite a bit since last year," Favre said.

"The Hawks will be here," he promised.

St. Stanislaus obliterates Devils

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
St. Stanislaus Rockchaws obliterated the Pearl River Central Blue Devils 20 to 6 Friday night at Kenneth L. Hendrix Memorial Stadium in Carriere several miles north of Picayune.

The Devils squeezed in their only score late in the fourth quarter.

Oddly enough, the Devils scored their only touch down on a run.

The Devils had tried to run earlier in the game. But everytime they did, they ran into a wall of St. Stanislaus defenders.

The Rockchaws whizzed away 20 yards in the first quarter of play. The score resulted after a successful pass.

Following the run, St. Stanislaus scored its first point when the Rockchaws kicked a field goal.

The Rockchaws scored again when the Devils' defense failed to stop a 20 yard run by the Rockchaws.

is laid, quarterback Gary Sotak gives the ball to Sanner again, and it's a touch down, SSC, 13; Blue Devils, 0.

Betanzos falls in his attempt for the extra-point and the Rockchaws trot to the locker rooms at half time leading 13-0.

The game resumes, it's early in the third quarter and from out the blue Sanner scores another touch down followed by a successful kick by Betanzos, giving the Rockchaws a substantial lead of 20 to 0.

Also in the third quarter defensive back Marc Meyer intercepted a Devils pass deep in the Devils territory, which set up a brilliant run for a touch down by Mercury himself, Keith Brister, however the 10 was called back due to a holding penalty against SSC.

The fourth quarter action seemed instantaneous. The Devils scored a touch down on a 20 yard run by the Rockchaws.

Natchez prepares Fall Pilgrimage

Natchez, a mecca for national and international travelers since the days of the early explorers, will again open her doors to Autumn pilgrims at the third annual Natchez Fall Pilgrimage.

Like the visitor of 1822, the stranger today will also be "kindly received by the opulent people of this town which has a charming aspect of quietness and repose."

In 1863, the wife of the Yankee General Gresham observed that "the place seems to breathe culture."

The sojourner of 1979 can decide for himself whether he agrees with Mrs. Gresham that Stanton Hall as "the best lines of all the Colonial homes I have ever seen in America," or whether Rosalie is "the handsomest of the residences."

Thirty other stately mansions cushioned among the trees and nestling behind trim gardens will also invite and intrigue the visitor. Of special interest are four which are shown only during the Fall Pilgrimage.

Guests are directed to view from the high cliffs the rolling mighty Mississippi bathed in a flood of crimson sunset and at dusk to venture "under-the-hill," once the most infamous port on the River.

There one can relax and dine surrounded by the ghosts of pugnacious steamboatmen, saucy dancing girls, and tenants of haunts of vice.

Crisp autumn days and colorful fall foliage will add to the delight of the tourist in the spot that LeSieur LaSalle termed "the most delectable site on the river."

Paralegal studies offered at 'The W'

Three career-oriented degree programs, including a paralegal studies major, are being developed at Mississippi University for Women in Columbus.

Paralegal studies, a new major in The W's social sciences department, will offer students an opportunity to receive an education that is well-rounded and at the same time one that prepares her for a career as a lawyer's assistant," according to Joe Porters, M.U.W.'s director of extended studies.

He cited existing demand for paralegal in law firms, real insurance companies, banks and county government as a major reason for the addition of the major.

Paralegal courses, covering such topics as corporate law and family law, will be offered next semester at the university.

In addition, Dr. Thrash C. Carr, dean of the M.U.W. School of Home Economics, announced the development of two masters of science degree programs with minor in family and human development and a major in clothing, textiles, and accessories. Carr said the programs will be developed in cooperation with the state and federal governments and will be offered at the university and at extension centers.

Woman Alcoholic Seminar set in New Orleans

The woman problem drinker, the most hidden and misunderstood of all abusers, will be addressed at a Seminar on Alcohol and Drug Abuse for Greater New Orleans (CADA), A United Way Agency, at the Fountain Bay Club Hotel, 4040 Tulane Avenue, Wednesday, October 3, 1979.

Miss Phyllis Snyder, executive director of the Chicago Alcoholic Treatment Center, will be the featured speaker. Her talk, entitled "Understanding the Woman Alcoholic," will give and insight into the problems and condition of the female afflicted with the disease of alcoholism.

In January of 1977, after many years of experience in this field, Miss Snyder shared in the challenging task of opening the only municipal facility of its kind in the country, Chicago's Alcoholic Treatment Center.

In March, 1969, Mayor Richard J. Daley announced her appointment as executive director of the Center and she continues to serve in this capacity.

Miss Snyder is also a Certified Social Worker; an Instructor at Loyola's Stritch School of Medicine, Department of Psychiatry; Field Instructor, Loyola University, School of Social Work; regularly lectures at the Chicago Police Academy, and has served on the faculty of many schools on alcoholism including the Central States in Chicago, North Dakota, Texas and West Virginia.

According to Mrs. Melanie

Feldman, Chairman of the Woman Alcoholic Committee, "Miss Snyder's presentation will help the general public understand more clearly how subtle alcoholism can invade a woman's life, how easily it can develop and progress, and how destructive it can be."

"It will also be a great aid to husbands, children, and family members who are faced with the problem, who don't understand what is happening, and even worse, are unable to know what to do," she added.

In discussing the Seminar, Mrs. Feldman emphasized that the focus of the session will be on the everyday normal female, career woman, and wife and would include meaningful information and preventive suggestions.

"Depression, Sexuality, and Reasons for Rise in Women Alcoholics," will be the topic of Dr. William R. Sorum's talk.

Dr. Sorum, one of Louisiana's nationally recognized psychiatrists, is on the staff of River Oaks Hospital. He has served in the past as Medical Director of Louisiana's treatment facilities in New Orleans and is presently serving on the Board of Directors of the Committee on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse.

The role of alcohol in depression and sexuality are well known and acknowledged. It will be explored in the context of the woman. Reasons for the rise in female alcoholism will also be reviewed.

"The Committee is neither wet nor dry. It is not concerned about responsible and social drinking," according to Ashton Brisola, Executive Director of CADA.

"It is, however, concerned about the abusive and pathological drinking of irresponsible individuals and alcoholics. The toll on human lives happiness is immeasurable," he continued.

"One alcoholic woman, let's say a wife, affects four other human beings - a husband, two children, and a close relative or friend, or in the case of a career woman, the employer. These four go out into the community and affect four others, or sixteen additional individuals," he added.

Other speakers will address "Family Violence" and "The Fetal Alcohol Syndrome."

The Seminar is open to the public. The registration fee, which includes lunch, is $10.00. The program begins at 9:00 a.m. and ends at 4:00 p.m.

Since registration will be limited, interested individuals are requested to make reservations early to assure a place. Send name, address, and check or money order for $10.00 to CADA, 3314 Conti Street, New Orleans, LA 70119, or call 524-HELP for further information.

HNC seniors compete in Century III event

Seniors from Hancock North Central High School are expected to take advantage of an opportunity to win local, state and national awards by demonstrating their awareness, concern, and knowledge about needs and future national challenges.

One high school senior in the nation will win an $11,500 scholarship as top national prize in the Century III Leaders Scholarship Program. Two students from each state and the District of Columbia will win $1,500 scholarships and the opportunity to talk with national leaders in a conference at historic Colonial Williamsburg, Virginia.

And, before the national winner is announced in Williamsburg, nine finalists will have earned $500 awards on top of their $1,500 scholarships. Two state alternates from each state will receive $500 scholarships.

"We feel the program is very worthwhile for reasons in addition to the scholarships," said Thad Haskins, principal of the school. "We are encouraging seniors to participate because the Century III competition is a fine way for youngsters to become more involved with the community and social issues."

According to Haskins, the Century III Leaders is a national scholarship program open to high school seniors which emphasizes the future concerns of America. Students are initially judged on their leadership abilities, community involvement and current events awareness. The school winner is also required to write a brief projection outlining what he thinks is a particular issue America is likely to confront in the future and how such a challenge should be met.

The Century III program, which offers $216,500 in scholarships, is administered by the National Association of Secondary School Principals and funded by the Shell Oil Company.

Deadline for student submission of applications is October 10.

State library holdings available through Hancock system's microfiche

Patrons of the Hancock County Library System may now make selections directly from the collection of the Mississippi Library Commission through the publication of the first edition of MLC's card catalog on microfiche.

The catalog, which is a complete list of the books owned by the Mississippi Library Commission, includes more than 110,000 titles of adult and juvenile nonfiction.

According to Joe Forsee, director of the Mississippi Library Commission, the publication of the catalog is a "landmark development for libraries in Mississippi."

"This is the first time that a person can sit in a local public library and find out what they may borrow from the Mississippi Library Commission," he added.

The list, which is arranged by author, title, and subject, is the first step in the development of a statewide catalog of books in all major libraries in the state. Four hundred copies of the microfiche catalog are being distributed to headquarters libraries and many branches throughout the state. In addition, numerous libraries have received grants from the Mississippi Library Commission to purchase microfiche readers to enable them to use the catalog.

The Hancock County Library System received grants for two microfiche readers which will be placed at the headquarters library in Bay St. Louis and the Waveland Branch Library. These libraries will also have copies of the MLC microfiche card catalog.

Animal behavior study unravels human mystery

No one knows why a huge fin whale beaches itself. Is it committing suicide?

No one knows why an 8-ton killer whale jumps completely out of the sea. Is it just being playful?

Animals perform hundreds of acts that humans don't understand. But the science of animal behavior is now finding explanations for wildlife antics that have puzzled man since Aristotle first studied birds and bees in the fourth century B.C., according to the current issue of International Wildlife magazine.

The study of wildlife is also becoming more closely linked with the study of human behavior, the National Wildlife Federation publication says, and "as scientists continue to study the lives of animals, their findings will throw new light on the nature of man himself."

Reports on recent studies are contained in a special issue of International Wildlife devoted entirely to animal behavior. Here are some of the questions about wildlife to which researchers have found answers:

Why Do Wolves Howl?
Contrary to popular belief, it's not because they're lonely. Wolves are highly social creatures with one of the most complex communication systems in the animal kingdom and the howling is a signal of when visibility is poor.

Howling also serves as a mechanism for keeping the

are closely connected nesting and mating.

Birds use their melodies — some species have a repertoire of half a dozen — to define their nesting territories and woo their mates.

Aside from all these practical reasons, some researchers now believe that birds, like people, sing just for the "sheer joy of it."

Why Do Monkeys Make Faces?
The "faces" are an important part of monkeys' communications with each other, but people have wrongly interpreted those expressions as if they were human. What looks like a monkey "yawn" may be a warning to another monkey to

It is true that the vampire bat may partake of human blood — a foot protruding from a blanket is a tempting target — but no one has ever perished from the bite of a healthy vampire.

The bats prefer wild animals or cows, swine, and goats.

After alighting on its victim, the bat slices a shallow cut with its razor-sharp teeth and laps up the flowing blood. It feeds about an ounce of blood a day.

No one knows how the vampire bat got started on its unique diet, but now its system is so specialized that it can't eat anything else.

Why Do Fireflies Flash?
Fireflies, which are actually beetles, produce light with a complex chemical reaction that takes place within their abdominal cells.

The luminescence is reflected out through their transparent skin. Research, which has found that almost all of the 1,000 or so species of fireflies have distinctive light patterns.

A male of one species flashes the pattern of his species and waits for a female to flash back. If she does so, he recognizes her as one of his own kind, and flies off toward her.

Despite progress that has been made since Charles Darwin published "The Expression of the Emotions in Man and Animals" in 1872, International Wildlife concludes that the science of animal behavior is still in its infancy.

What's surprising is the fact that these encounters seldom end in a fatality.

Why Do Vampire Bats Suck Blood?
"Unlike its fictional counterpart," explains International Life, "this common flying mammal of the southwestern U.S., and Central and South America is not a ruthless and terrifying mankiller."

Actually, the tiny vampire bat doesn't suck blood, but laps it up "like a kitten with a saucer of milk."

Concern for health reflected in decline of cigarette use

For the first time in this decade, total cigarette consumption dropped—during fiscal 1979, and the Mississippi Lung Association—the Christmas Seal people think this may reflect a changing lifestyle by Americans concerned for their health.

Citing figures recently released by the tobacco industry, Dr. John F. Bussey, president, Mississippi Lung Association, noted a decrease of nearly 172,000,000 packs taxed from July 1978 through June 1979, compared to the previous year.

Actual figures, from a regular report of the Tobacco Tax Council, were 26,771,000 for 1978-79 and 28,042,200,000 for 1977-78.

An industry supported organization—the council regularly reports total consumption of tobacco products based on tax receipts.

Dr. Bussey said the decline, coupled with federal reports of the lowest per-capita cigarette consumption in 20 years, could reflect concern for health signaled by mass devotion to diet, jogging and even roller skating.

"After all, not smoking is the best way to avoid lung disease," he said.

Dr. Bussey added that he hoped the new figures also would serve as proof that sales figures no longer can be used to obscure mounting concern about the cigarette's share in disease, death and health costs.

Only 33 percent of adult Americans now smoke cigarettes, compared to 41 percent in 1964, Dr. Bussey said. The drop has been greatest for men, from 51 to 38

There's even heartening evidence that the rate at which teenagers take up the cigarette habit is beginning to decline, although far too many children still smoke, and at shockingly early ages.

Dr. Bussey said persuading young children never to take up the cigarette habit is a major priority of the Mississippi Lung Association. A special educational campaign is planned in October and November to alert parents and children to the dangers of smoking, Dr. Bussey added.

Anyone interested in information on the health hazards of smoking, "Thank You For Not Smoking" cards or posters, materials on quitting smoking, should contact the Mississippi Lung Association, P.O. Box 100, Jackson, Mississippi 39201.

Students aid recipients increase 100% at PRC

The number of students receiving some type of financial aid at Pearl River College in Poplarville has doubled since this time last year, said Dean Joyce Smith, director of PRC's financial aid department. "We're just tickled over the number of students taking advantage of the offerings of our financial aid department," Mrs. Smith said, "we're proud we can inform our students of these services."

Pearl River provides assistance and information for the Guaranteed Student Loan Program, National Direct Student Loan Program, College Work-Study Program, The Basic Educational Opportunity Grant and Health Professions and Nursing Student Loan Program.

The BEOG program has probably benefited more students than any of the other programs. The maximum amount a student can receive under this program is $1800 minus the amount the family is expected to contribute toward the cost of the education. A federal ruling last year increased the family earning limit to $25,000 from $15,000 and that one factor has enabled more and more students to qualify under the program. The Guaranteed Student Loan Program enables students to borrow from eligible lenders at a low interest rate to meet educational expenses. Banks, credit unions, savings and loan associations, and other participate voluntarily in GSL and lend their own funds.

Under the provisions of the National Defense Education Act of 1958, the Federal Government makes possible for a limited number of students to borrow up to $1,250 each year to a total of $5000 for undergraduate study of four years.

Repayment begins nine months after the student ceases to do at least half-time study. Any may extend over a 10-year period.

The College Work-Study Program is a joint program sponsored by the Federal Government and Pearl River College to stimulate and promote the part-time employment of students who are in need of the earnings from such employment to pursue courses of study at PRC.

Under the NSL program students may borrow up to $1500 academic year. The interest rate is three percent per year with payment beginning no later than nine months after leaving school. "I'll be glad to help any student to fill out forms for these different student assistance programs," Mrs. Smith said, "I want to meet every student and inform them of what they can apply for."

MEDDLING WITH GASOLINE

A lot of gasoline dependent Mississippians have become convinced in recent weeks that the U.S. Department of Energy has gone beyond the useful limits of rule-making and gone to meddling when it comes to reallocation of gasoline from service stations that go out of business or fail to sell all of their allotments.

And the meddling has gone so far as to thrust a false assumption across the land that when a gasoline service station closes for any reason, its allocation of gasoline is not needed in that area and should be reallocated to another area or population density for the public good.

This of course is a rather succinct simplification of the problem and stands in stark contrast to the lengthy jargon and rationale of a new ruling to be put into effect on October 1st by the Economic Regulatory Administration of the DOE. Nevertheless, essentially it is philosophically true.

Prior to this federal intervention in gasoline distribution, if a station reduced its order for gasoline or went out of business altogether, it was nobody's business but the local retail service station operator and his distributor. But today Uncle Sam is standing there with the outstretched hand pointing and saying, "I want your allotment."

Mississippians stand to suffer more than other states in this latest federal intervention because of the large number of gasoline stations in the state. Mississippi has 1,100 stations, more than any other state in the nation. The state's population is 2,200,000, which is about the same as the population of California, which has 1,000 stations.

What this amounts to is robbing Peter to pay Paul after Peter has done a better job of conservation. It amounts further to an unfair penalty against consumers in any one place whose dealer defaults for any reason. This becomes even more abusive to Mississippians in view of the fact that already Mississippi's distribution has one of the lowest average monthly allocations of any state. Mississippi's average monthly allocation is 1.5 million gallons, while California's is 2.5 million gallons.

Under the new ruling, the state's allocation will be reduced to 1.2 million gallons. This is a 20 percent reduction. The state's population is 2,200,000, which is about the same as the population of California, which has 1,000 stations.

percent of its working population - compared with other more urban states where mass transit systems eliminate a lot of dependence on automobiles for getting to and from work and the very conduct of business itself.

Yet despite this greater dependence on gasoline for daily work, in June of this year Mississippians showed more restraint in gasoline usage than all but four states. According to figures released by the Department of Energy, this June Mississippians used only .88 percent of their consumption of the same period a year ago. Marylanders equaled Mississippi's record while three states beat us - sparsely-populated Alaska with .63 percent, Iowa with .66, and Delaware with .64. The U.S. total population consumed .95 percent as much gasoline as of June of this year compared with a year ago.

What this amounts to is robbing Peter to pay Paul after Peter has done a better job of conservation. It amounts further to an unfair penalty against consumers in any one place whose dealer defaults for any reason. This becomes even more abusive to Mississippians in view of the fact that already Mississippi's distribution has one of the lowest average monthly allocations of any state. Mississippi's average monthly allocation is 1.5 million gallons, while California's is 2.5 million gallons.

Corps issues permits

William H. Barret was issued a permit by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers July 9, 1979 to construct a breakwater in Bay St. Louis. Permits for work and structures in navigable waterways are issued by the Mobile District of the Corps. Possible violations of permit regulations were discovered by the Corps during a recent inspection of the breakwater. The Corps is now working to correct the violations.

Balloon flight test centered at Keesler

Keesler Air Force Base in Biloxi has been selected as site of a high-altitude research balloon flight to be conducted by the Air Force Geophysics Laboratory headquartered at Hanscom AFB, Mass.

Approximately 65 employees and contractors from the AFGL will be at Keesler through Oct. 20 to conduct the test flight.

The satellites are being engineered by the Air Force's Space and Missile Systems Organization in Los Angeles. Keesler was selected for this test, which follows a similar test May 29 at Holloman AFB, N.M., because the west-to-east flight track of the balloon will carry it over the Gulf of Mexico. This will enable researchers to observe the land-water border as it appears in infrared.

The balloon will be recovered in mid-air by helicopter after about 10 hours flight time.

Data gathered will be used in the development of advanced infrared sensing systems carried by surveillance satellites.
